A Stamp for Every Memory

Each beautifully designed passport has its own individual number, so it's unique to you and your visit. As you make your way along the winding stretch of coast that makes up the Wild Atlantic Way, you can collect 188 unique stamps, one for each of the discovery points along the route.

You can receive your individual Wild Atlantic Way stamps at Post Offices and Tourist Information Offices in the towns and villages adjacent to each Discovery Point.

The route is divided up into six zones and when you receive 20 stamps in your passport please call to The Tourist Information Offices listed to receive a Wild Atlantic Way gift. If you have missed a stamp whilst in a zone you can call to the main Post Offices and the Tourist Information Offices highlighted.

THE WILD ATLANTIC WAY

Wherever you go along the Wild Atlantic Way, you will encounter moments of magic, moments to treasure and experiences that you will want to return to again and again.

Explore our Islands

Experience the awesome power, beauty and wonder of the Wild Atlantic Way up close and personal with a visit to some of the hundreds of islands scattered off the West coast. White sandy beaches, towering cliff faces, turquoise seas, history, heritage and culture all abound along the Wild Atlantic Way and nowhere more so than on the islands. The isolation of island life fosters a unique way of life with the environment having its own impact on its people, landscape, culture and tradition. On each island you'll experience unique characteristics, as if each is an individual nation.

The journeys to reach the islands of Ireland are as much a part of the experience and adventure as the islands themselves. For some you drive across impressive causeways and bridges, or for Dursey Island board a swinging cable car, but for most it is the island ferries that will bring you to your chosen island escape.

Lighthouses

For hundreds of years lighthouses have helped seafarers find their way. Now they shine their light on a truly unique experience around the stunning coastline of Ireland. Great Lighthouses of Ireland, is a new all-island tourism initiative, developed by the Commissioners of Irish Lights. Featuring lighthouses in breath taking coastal locations, the Light houses on the Wild Atlantic Way offers visitors from home and abroad the chance to visit or stay in a lighthouse, to find out about their history, to appreciate the spectacular natural world around them, to discover the technology at work in lighthouses today and to meet the people who are passionate about these unique places. For you that have never stayed in a lighthouse.. Imagine being far from anywhere, but close to everything that's good for your heart and great for your soul. Fresh air. Incredible views. Nature around you. And the sea stretching out in front of you, vast, powerful and mysterious.

A journey of a lifetime

National Parks

The Wild Atlantic Way is home to five of the six National Parks in Ireland. These parks provides unique opportunities to interact with and observe some incredible wildlife, plant life and rare natural habitats. The five parks are Glenveagh National Park, Co. Donegal, Ballycroy National Park, Co. Mayo, Connemara National Park, Co. Galway, The Burren National Park, Co. Clare and Killarney National Park, Co. Kerry. These parks may vary in size dramatically in size and landscape. But they all have one thing in common – they're scenic wonders and havens for walkers.

THE WILD ATLANTIC WAY

Beaches

Ireland's beaches bring together all the ingredients for an unforgettable holiday. Whether you're looking for a quiet sandy spot or a famous surf break, the Wild Atlantic Way is the perfect place to experience the diversity of our coastline. Plus, many beaches along the coast have been awarded Blue Flag or Green Coast awards, attesting to their water quality, safety and environmental status.

Whale and Dolphin Watching

Almost one third of the world's species of whales, dolphins and porpoises, collectively known as cetaceans, have been recorded in Irish waters. In 1991 the Irish government declared Irish waters a whale and dolphin sanctuary - the first of its kind in Europe – and the Wild Atlantic Way is at the very heart of Ireland's whale and dolphin sanctuary. Our waters are also among the best in the world for sightings of the planet's second largest fish, the plankton feeding basking shark, which arrives in late spring but can be seen throughout the summer in settled waters.

Festivals

Some countries have seasons dedicated to festivals. The Wild Atlantic Way has an entire calendar. Kicking off in January and packing the months until December, festivals are in the hundreds, and know exactly how to catch our attention.

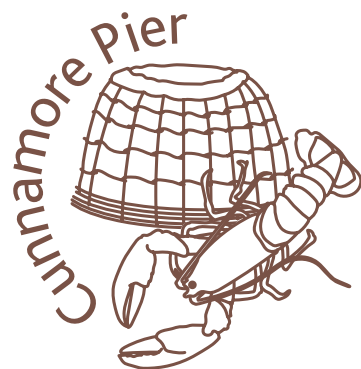

Some see international bands rocking exceptional outdoor venues. Others host traditional musicians in intimate pubs or on remote islands such as Valentia and Arranmore. Other events could see you on seafood safaris along the Wild Atlantic Way. One thing they all have in common? Fun.

Food

There's more to Ireland's west coast than sheer cliffs and sensational seascapes. All along the Atlantic, you'll find coastal communities whose boats have bobbed on the ocean for centuries, who catch and produce seafood with passion and dedication, and whose chefs know a thing or two about how to cook it. Prepare to taste the best seafood on the planet.

Taste the Atlantic: A Seafood Journey is a dedicated seafood trail, an adventure dotted with suggestions ranging from restaurants and cafés to farms, fishing ports and smokehouses. It's a route you can dip into or do in its entirety, an opportunity to explore Ireland's pristine oceans, to sample its food story, to enjoy an unforgettable taste of place on a plate. Seafood is where the Wild Atlantic Way meets Ireland's unique culture. It's about lobster and crab, salmon and mackerel, oysters and mussels plucked fresh from the heaving ocean. But it's also about the men and women who mix tradition and 21st century techniques to bring it from tide to table, to serve it just a few miles (or in some cases, just a few feet) from where it's caught. See the ocean. Meet the people. Feel the welcome. A taste of the Atlantic beckons, so bring an appetite... and your sense of adventure!

THE WILD ATLANTIC WAY

Traditional Music

If you like Irish music, maybe you already have a sense of the magic that awaits when you journey into the heart of traditional Irish music – the unique atmosphere of the live, local experience, the fusion of sounds and styles, old and new. You'll find the sounds of traditional music both mysterious and familiar, because the styles and rhythms of our folk songs, ballads, jigs or reels have found their way into almost every style of contemporary music. So whatever your tastes, you won't be disappointed: there really is something for everyone with a vibrant culture of traditional music, song and dance, concerts and pub sessions aplenty.
